The JA-82SH Wireless Shock Detector

This new detector available in late February detects the shock/vibration of doors, windows etc. caused by an intruders attempts to force, smash, drill, or saw through. The detector uses the advanced digital signal processing of piezo element signals generated by vibrations. It offers easy installation with a simple calibration procedure, and has a memory of previous shocks to be sure of a real threat.

Ask our Export Dept for details of cost and delivery.

The Jablotron Museum

As part of celebrating Jablotron's 20th birthday, we have created an interesting museum at our Jablonec headquarters of our eventful history. Visitors can learn about this and see historical samples of previous products to chart our evolution through time, together with insights on leadership visions as well as our designers and their methods.

See Jablonews Issue 2 for more details.
